

Automatic enrolment into workplace pensions

Support for employers of carers

Starting from 2012 to 2018, all employers will be legally required to automatically enrol eligible staff into a pension scheme and make on-going contributions to the scheme. Eligible workers are those aged from 22 to state pension age and earning more than £10,000 a year. This duty includes individuals that employ workers for their own care and support, as it is important that care workers are able to save for their retirement too.

The Pensions Regulator is concerned that some Local Authorities may not fully understand the impact that automatic enrolment will have on those receiving direct payments. In order to help both Local Authorities and employers understand the issues, guidance has been developed specifically for people who employ their care and support workers.

Useful information can be found on The Pensions Regulator website:

The Pensions Regulator has a customer support number (0345 600 1011) and dedicated email address (customersupport@autoenrol.tpr.gov.uk) for queries about meeting the employer duties.

The Pensions Regulator can also provide support about the set up costs for automatic enrolment:
